TWO WORF VICTIVIS ARE UNEARTHED THE MURDER FARM

Searchers Delving Into the Graveyard of Mrs. Belle Gunness Find the Corpses of a Woman and a Man Buried in Same Grave.

LAPORTE, Ind., May 8.—The murder trap on the McClurg road gave up two more of its dead to-day. This swells the known list of murdered to eleven. Counting in the bodies of the woman and three children found in the fire ruins of the Guinness (or Gunness) house, the

At 9 o'clock this morning the Sheriff's men took advantage of a 245 let-up in the heavy rain to dig into a suspicious patch of soft earth in the orchard at a point some distance from the burned farmhouse and from the spot where most of Mrs. Bell Gunness's victims had thus far been disinterred. They had not been at work long before their shovels turned up the dismembered skeleton of an adult, apparently a male. The body had been in the clay so long that nothing remained by which it might be identified. The bones were gathered together and carried to the shed where the other corpses found in the human abattoir had been placed.

Within half an hour another body had been discovered. Before abandoning this last grave one of the searchers decided to probe the soil beneath it. Directly underneath the spot where the first body of the day had been found he came upon the skeleton of a woman. Nothing grently been buried in one hole, with more than a thousand strong detectives feel certain that these two-a man and a woman-were slain at the of adjacent towns and villiages and kept a corpse in her private morgi in the cellar until a convenient hour for hiding it a vay.

The county officials feel more certa than ever that the green lawn of the horror-farm is literally tiled and crosstiled with murdered men and women Some estimates on the probable number of dead now run as high as thirty. The news that digging operations were to be resumed to-day attracted a large crowd. As early as 7 o'clock this morning buggies, hacks, wagons and all sorts of conveyances started for the visitors from far away cities made up the crowd that watched the diggers Next only in interest to the search

Gorgeous Fireworks Display by The World To-Morrow Night.

The pyrotechnical display, one of the features of the celebration to-morrow night at 9 o'clock of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the ownership and direction of The World by Joseph Pulitzer and of the formal opening of the enlarged Pulitzer Building, promises to be the most gorgeous spectacle of its kind ever witnessed in the city. It will be furnished by Pain, the king of pyrotechnics. The chief features are as follows:

Opening salute of twenty-five aerial guns. Magical illumination of the roof and dome with twenty-five mammoth ruby lights. Nests of flery cobras will be released from colossal batteries. Brilliant white lights will illuminate the roof and dome with startling effects.

A salvo of twenty of Pain's Manhattan Beach bombs will be followed by an illumination of the roof and dome with blue lights. Then will come Pain's 1908 novelty-tatteries of silver clusters. A display of triple bombshells, each with a different effect, will be succeeded by an illumination of the building with red, green and amber fires.

Thousands of tinted stars, produced from hundreds of giant Roman endles, will envelop the dome; then will come a discharge of Painite bombs; a musical golden rain leffect, and the great, golden cloud studded with jewels from twenty large shells..

Emerald fires will illuminate the roof and dome, followed by batteries of Pain's aerobatic candles; display of Pain's rocket bombs and a salvo of Pain's fiery spider bombs, the 1907 success of Pain at Manhattan Beach.

Opal clouds, formed by a flight of large shells, an illumination of the roof and dome with am er fires, giving a sunset effect, and swarms of fireflies filling the air, with hundreds of flashlights, will immediately precede the "New York World" batteries, a 1908 conceit.

Powerful magnesium fires will illuminate the building, giving a dayight effect. A flight of large bombs forming The World bouquet will ead up to the marvel of the spectacie, "Pain's electric falls." From he sides of the roof will flow waves of fire, emitting sparkling rays and lashes like molten silver.

ing the fate of Mrs. Guinness herself. The local authorities now insist that the headless body found in the ruins of her burned farmhouse was that of the arch murderess, and they hope to show AT THE JAMAICA TRACK

BY VINCENT TRUANOR. (Special to The Evening World.)

JAMAICA RACE TRACK, May 8.—The Kings County Handicap, the feature of the card here this afternoon, was one of the biggest betting RUNS.

Pattee Doolen Lumley Bransfield. No Bransfield. No events of the meeting. There were five starters in the race, and all of them was played. Light Wool was the closing favorite, carrying thousands of the public's money, but Faust, thrown in with 88 pounds, got big support, which sent his price from the opening figure of 10 to 1 down to sevens at post time.

There was a tip out on Rye, and he carried the money of the Sullivans and their followers. The play on these offset that of Old Honesty and Spooner, and these were the only two whose prices went back.

Faust won the race in a gruelling some sight to the bookies as they saw driving finish with Light Wool from the head of the stretch home. It was head and head all the way, with the crowd stretch and come away easily. Up to on its toes cheering their favorites on. Sumter on Faust rode Light Wool close all the way and the latter being on the rail had little room. They went past the judges on a line and Faust's number was promptly hung up. Garner ascended the stairs of the stewards to make a claim of foul, but while he was on his way the "all right" red board went up with unusual quick- finally withdrawn, those who had bets ness. Garner's claim was ignored, much on the colt losing their money. Wamto the displeasure of the backers of Light Wool, who felt it was a just one.

The Books Loose.

The victory of Faust cost the books a show money. The track was heavy. lot of money. There were some nice hets down on the Mirthful gelding. Musgrave returned to the saddle to-day for the first time since his fall off Alwas in saddle to-day for the first time since his suspension. He got home the public money, and it was a gladsome sight to the bookies as they saw Fight Sort pass the hot favorite in the this time it looked as if Father Stafford would gallop in.

Primrose League ran head and head with Father Stafford and then tired after swinging wide into the stretch. Right Sort ran third all the way to the turn and saved a lot of ground by hugging the rail. Desolate ran away two miles going to the post and was mandine last Monday. G. Burns also ing Colloquy a slight favorite, although
